About Ted Rhodes Foundation

The Ted Rhodes Foundation (TRF) honors the legacy of legendary golfer Ted "Teddy" Rhodes, one of the first African Americans to break barriers in professional golf. Teddy is the 1st African American professional golfer in the modern era to play in the US Open (1948). During his 1997 Master's win, Tiger Woods credited Ted Rhodes and other African American golf pioneers for paving the way for him to play golf. Teddy was Boxer Joe Louis golf coach and mentored many other up and coming golfers such as, Lee Elder, Charlie Sifford, and Althea Gibson. There is a golf course that bears Teddy's name (Ted Rhodes Golf Course) in Nashville, TN.

TRF was founded in 1993 by Peggy Rhodes-White, Ted Rhodes Daughter, to advance Teddy's mission of access, excellence, and inclusion, the Foundation uses the game of golf as a tool to teach life skills, leadership, and community responsibility.

Through our signature youth program, Future Golfers of America – "Growing the Champions of Tomorrow" program, the Foundation provides young golfers ages 5-18 – especially from underrepresented communities- access to the game, provide professional instruction, tournaments, mentorship, scholarships that promote character, confidence, and leadership, and open doors to collegiate and career opportunities. This initiative honors the legacy of golf trailblazer Ted "Teddy" Rhodes, whose courage and talent opened doors for future generations.

TRF provides financial support and resources to HBCU Golf Programs to keep these programs alive. The partnerships include Delaware State University, Dover, DE, Fisk University, Nashville, TN, Wiley University, Marshall, TX, and additional partnerships to be announced in 2026.

Since launching the Ted Rhodes Junior Golf Tournament in 2014, the TRF has engaged more than 1,500 youth participants nationwide — inspiring a new generation of golfers to carry forward Ted Rhodes' trailblazing legacy both on and off the course. TRF conducts golf clinics for youth in the urban areas, such as Chicago Public Schools students.
